WHY ' CERTAIN RIVERS ' ? My sophomore year of college I scribbled down a verse from a Czeslaw Milosz poem, stashed it in a book, and forgot about it: " When it hurts we return to the banks of certain rivers, " it said. It liked it but couldn ' t say why. It was vague yet striking. This might come in hand, I thought.

Violets grow along the edge of the road. To my right, the Little Jib River flows brown and swollen to the lake. The water moves ceaselessly, and I move along with it. To my left, across the road, the rain strips wilted cherry blossoms from the rows and rows of trees, and drops them to the ground. " Jon Harrison, The Banks of Certain Rivers
